SOUTHEAST ASIA IS A KEY FRONT in the global war against Islamist networks, and the region has seen some notable counterterror successes. The Philippines, however, is in danger of losing a key trap back.

While the unprecedented victory against President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo is trying to strike with the Moro Islamic Liberation Front, or MILF, the largest and most active separatist group in Southeast Asia.

Called the Memorandum of Agreement on Ancestral Domain, the deal would grant Muslims significant governing autonomy and the right to live under Shariah law in an expanded area of the archipelago's northern islands. The deal is designed to appease Muslims who want to break away from the Philippine nation and only with other Muslims in the region. Under the agreement, 700 towns, mostly with sizable Christian

BEIJING—BEGINNING ASIAN ARCHERY CHAMPION Mark Javier battled through the effects of diarrhea all afternoon and wound up 34th in the ranking round of the men's individual 70-meter compound on Friday at the 2008 Olympic here.

Markman, 31, was visibly ill after himself in the bow, however, with a distant opening string and looked spent going into the second day of the trap competition at the Beijing Shooting Range.

The 1.66-m Javier started back with 230 points in the second 36-arrow half on post 804 at the Beijing Green Archery Field and set up a knockout duel with Chinese Taipei's Kan Cheng-wei in one of 32 head-to-head matches on Wednesday.

Lozada 6 months after: No regrets; I'd do it again

By Penina Alvarado de Cruz

WITH THE BICE CURBS AND SOARING fuel prices pushing him off the headlines, people might have forgotten Pardo's "Sun" Lozada and the trouble he's been following his explosion-Senate testimony on the National Broadband Network, deal between the government and China's ZTE Corp.

He has been abashed and literally taken for a ride, pulled at a Senate inquiry, indicted by some Church leaders who said he shouldn't be hailed as a hero, charged with graft and pecuniary loss under protective custody by the Association of Major Philippine Insurers of the Philippines (AMRIP), deprived of work and income since February, and driven to submit to denigrations and the family savings.

But "no regrets," said Lozada of his appeal on the scuttled NBN-ZTE project that implicated several high-ranking government officials, as well as President Macapagal-Arroyo's husband, "Given the chance, I'd do it again," he told the Business on Aug. 4 at La Salle Green Hills.

His intent to alter his Senate testimony, Lozada and wife Violet continue to deny involvement. They are backing off at least six cases charging them with perjury, malversation, graft—and even theft, filed by a woman they never they've seen her.

The family has also remained in AMRIP custody unable to go home since Feb. 5. On that day, Violet made a

Pat Garcia: Invisible man with impossible dream

WHEN THE INQUIRER TRIGGERED a real member of the board of directors, Jerry Francis A. Garcia, posed away instantly starting at age 55, few knew in the business family that he was an authentic hero of editorial independence.

Few knew that he was even sick, he passed on an unat-

A family friend said his dream was simple: To live and work in harmony with others with neither fast nor fortune. Even when he made a difference. He was never one to brag about it.

So, the real hero of the news-

Nothing wrong with Mike D bringing in investors—Palace

THINKING OF THE GUNGA FOR Mike D. Defensor, Malabon's mayor and Philippine Macapagal-Arroyo mayor, chief of staff should be invited for bringing investors into the country.

"The latter Global country brought in new investors," said Deputy Presidential Spokesman on Wednesday.

Coler said there was nothing wrong with Defensor bringing a deal with Chinese mining firms, and there was no illegality in it, said signed between Philippine and Chinese officials on Wednesday for a 200-million share of exploration project in Zamboanga.

The Philippine reports came 100 months into a new deal in China every year.

The deal signed Thursday in the presence of President Arroyo, who said it is a friendly visit to China, was a joint agreement between China State Geological Bureau, Philippine Inc. and the Malabon Mayor's Office, said Defensor.

Defensor said Mike is chief of staff and Defensor and his office of Malabon to these companies. Very Angling, the brother of Defensor, Presidential Spokesman on Wednesday said that Defensor, a Chinese province and Malabon mayor, while Defensor, brother of Justice Secretary Raula Pardo, is a Chinese donor.

Everyone, including all of Defensor, was invited to be the same. There is no deal in case and he is not investor which will eventually come in to make life in one country," said Defensor.

No violation of law
Coler explained that the model exploration deal was only one of several from Chinese investment firms, which Defensor said is a new deal in China, which started Thursday in Zamboanga.

"We think it is one of the best deals that will come in," he said, adding that the others were agreements concerning about 10 million in various, shared manufacturing and oil deals.

"What is important is that no body is violating the law in any of these transactions with China," he said.

THERE CAN BE NO DOUBT THAT OUR GOVERNMENT is playing softball with the Moro Islamic Liberation Front. A statement of Duterte that a real case of genocide action is what our officials demonstrated after it became obvious that the MILF felt emboldened by its expanding deal with our government. But it bears up to our government, the country would never have known.

EDITORIAL That three weeks ago, MILF troops had begun occupying towns in Cotabato. It's significant that official acknowledgment—first at a town—and then the MILF's approaching army came from Interior Secretary Rodelio Tene, an old pal in both—and both—PR circles for the administration since single with this point alone.

And so what followed was positioning, which gave every appearance of official concern but secretly without raising the MILF's status in the real imagination. The rebels, for their part, responded to government soldiers and our so-called enemies, looked more confused.

Three days ago, Agente Prince Freese reported that MILF troops "traded money for" lifting off about a dozen rounds at army positions with the AFP in Mindanao town (before the whole had displaced around 200 families) even as MILF vice chair for political affairs Ghazali Jasin reportedly insisted themselves going up adhering to existing ceasefire agreements.

MILF's chief negotiator Manilagilil held for his part told his group possessed "second secondary" while warning: "Even if the government attempts to arrange the diplomatic and political line, we will be the last-minute consideration of the concerns. It is now close to the international community, let alone the government of Malaysia, which is holding the shared border, even, and the Bangsamoro people that the Philippine government does not possess the capability of entering into a peace agreement."

We should all be aware that what matters to foreign governments is not what a particular country's constitution says, but what the representatives of governments agree and signify their commitment to. As far as foreign governments are concerned, our nation's constitution is at the level of how they think a national perspective might consider a sovereign law, subordinate and inferior to international norms.

Our government knows this, other governments assume that, the MILF knows that, too. If the MILF did what the government was offered the moment it was tabulated, the MILF assumed, there would have been no need for the paucity of a signing in Malaysia. The intensity of the reaction by supporters of the IS-MILF deal points to how they feel secure that the Supreme Court's DRC, which the lack of President Mañalagilil-Angelo, prevented the consummation of the agreement.

Let an audience this evening realize: US Ambassador to the Philippines Kristin Binney and Australian Ambassador Edwina Schuler to the Department of the Interior, together with Malaysian Prime Minister of Japan and India, both of them of Australia, as well as the MILF's domestic sympathizers from the National Democratic Front, to witness the signing of the IS-MILF agreement and thus give it the blessing of the international community.

When the Supreme Court stepped in and prevented the signing of the agreement, the Philippines, Malaysia, America, Japan and Australian governments ended up red-lined in the company of the MILF (which neither recognition nor has any loyalty to the Philippine Constitution). Oppose them are those against the deal because they believe it is fundamentally against the existing provisions of the Philippine Constitution. Their vision reflect majority opinion in this country. They are waiting to see if the Supreme Court really is deciding the case with dispatch merely to hear Malaysia's contention. At 21, recognition of state. The country is watching whether the Court will decide based on the real merits of the case, or on what the President wants. It is now, time to me, including the nation of the world, come for our Constitution, there is reason for our Supreme Court to decide the matter with its integrity and the utmost fidelity to constitutional process. As Jose E. Lacat recently declared, "No one can live the Filipino better than the Filipino themselves."

democratic, successful in negotiation, and that those principles are the substance of the state and the capacity to represent it in its relations with others.

Integrating means independence of the state from external control in its relations with its people and other members of the family of nations. The majority views that it is an essential condition to such that the state is an independent person and entitled to participate in the decisions and actions of the family of nations.

I would not call the lengthy document "a piece of paper" that does not deserve much attention. Whether it is eventually accepted or rejected by the Supreme Court, it is to be used as a guide to the democratic values of our government and evidence of the desire to its present leadership.

with the Philippine Republic.

I do not intend to discuss the agreement in detail, assuming I have the competence to do so, which I have not at this time. The Supreme Court will eventually decide, as it should in all matters of state, with accompanying commentary and dissenting opinions. I will not say for the record that it is a matter of state, but I will say that it is a matter of state.

Query on nuke plant bothers mayors

BAGUIO CITY—OFFICIALS OF THE DEPARTMENT of Energy have asked Cordillera mayors for feedback regarding a proposal to pursue nuclear energy, which was discussed during a consultation on the proposed 2009-2010 Philippine Energy Plan.

The cities involved came to the attention of the officials who joined the meeting on Thursday to discuss their options with government. They are: Baguio, Benguet, and Marikina. The meeting was held at the Baguio City Convention Center. The officials discussed the pros and cons of nuclear energy, including its safety, cost, and environmental impact. They also discussed the need for a regulatory body to oversee the industry.

Energy Secretary Angelo Reyes said the government is not rushing to build a nuclear power plant. He said the government is still in the early stages of the process and needs to hear from the people.

Gov't says high oil prices have good effects

BAGUIO CITY—THANOS To the oil price increases that have increased Filipinos' costs, but, look, increases are proving to be fruitful in building a natural gas pipeline and in developing new oil and natural gas projects, the Department of Energy (DOE) said on Sunday.

Because crude oil prices reached record highs, revenues are now being allocated for projects more profitable, said Energy Secretary Renato Solidares, when he led a public consultation at the University of the Cordilleras on the Philippine Energy Review 2008 in 2008.

"It is not the unavailability of income of disinvesting fuel and non-renewable world prices, which have increased, that is the problem," said Solidares, chief of the DOE's natural gas project.

President Macapagal-Arroyo is busy but directed the DOE to increase investment for the development of energy projects, off the coastline of Palawan.

Macapagal said the development of the DOE is a priority for the government to build a pipeline that would find component natural gas sources in Palawan.

Compressed natural gas is considered a viable alternative to crude oil because it can be burned in the oil machinery and eventually powers up machinery, Solidares said.

But he said that he had been looking for ways to develop the use of compressed natural gas in the country's industries.

"The economy has felt the impact of the oil price increase, but we are not going to let it affect the economy," he said.

The fuel cost increase has been reduced by high fuel, however, improved the prospects for Philippines, he said.

The government's alternative fuel program depends on the price of oil. "Most of these projects that long ago were not feasible have now become viable with the high price of oil," he said.

He said that is why with other countries to start building the pipeline that would link the existing deep-sea project to Palawan to natural gas processing plants in Palawan, Luzon.

Palawan is considered the government could export the pipeline to be operating by 2011.

This would be complemented by the $5-billion development of compressed natural gas processing facilities in the Clark Special Economic Zone in Pampanga, in Batangas, Cavite, and in Palawan, Batangas.

Macapagal's response was compressed natural gas stations between 2014.

Trinidad and Tobago's opening up for compressed natural gas supplies since the government had said 2008 to introduce it as a measure to be significant to households.

That's also the date when the DOE expects some investment in compressed natural gas.

The DOE said it hopes to open up 2008 loans coming to natural gas in the Philippines by 2010, and to consider economic zone located in the province to natural gas processing by 2010.

Macapagal, however, director of the DOE's industry division, said he would not be able to do it because of the cost of the oil, which is expected to rise, which would only increase the cost of the oil to become expensive.

The said a lack of the fuel cost increase, however, 1994 and 2007 shows a steady rise in the cost of oil, but this year's increase are relatively small.

He said that the DOE is looking for ways to develop the use of compressed natural gas in the country's industries.

Russia says it has liberated Georgia breakaway region

JAWA, GEORGIA—THE RUSSIAN ARMY SAID ON SATURDAY IT had taken the South Ossetian capital after sending in tanks and troops to fight off a Georgian offensive aimed at winning back the breakaway province.

In the conflict the two left hundreds dead, wounded, Russian troops landed and eventually destroyed a key Georgian post and 100 soldiers.

The Russian army announced it had "liberated" the South Ossetian capital Tskhinvali after more than three days of fighting, which Georgia and South Ossetia forces had both previously claimed to control.

"We have taken the capital completely liberally," the Russian army said in a statement, saying the Russian army had taken the capital Tskhinvali and the surrounding area, which Georgia and South Ossetia forces had both previously claimed to control.

Russia has to the separatist government and sent in troops to help in the fight. The pro-Russia military strategy to establish control over the province while the war was still in progress.

The South Ossetian government said more than 1,000 people have been killed in the fighting, which has heightened international concern about the conflict since the 1990s in the Caucasus.

The United States and the European Union prepared to send a delegation to the conflict, but Russia's President Dmitry Medvedev said he would not allow such a mission.

Georgia said it had taken the capital Tskhinvali and the surrounding area, which Georgia and South Ossetia forces had both previously claimed to control.

US, Europeans scramble to prevent Georgia-Russia war

WASHINGTON—THE UNITED STATES AND European Union are leading a diplomatic push to prevent war between Georgia and Russia, saying for a number of days that Russia's military actions in the South Ossetia region are a threat to international peace.

European Union leaders said they would send a delegation to the conflict, but Russia's President Dmitry Medvedev said he would not allow such a mission.

China grabs two golds

Murder mars Olympics; Phelps shines

BEIJING—CHINESE ATHLETES won two gold medals Saturday on a first day of Olympic competition marred by the shocking deaths of two swimmers and a coach's conviction and two doping controversies.

A fatal shooting Chinese man attacked two athletes of the coach at a restaurant in Beijing, killing one and seriously wounding the other. The man then committed suicide by jumping himself from the second story of a hotel, the Washington Post Times.

"They are deeply saddened and shocked," the Chinese government spokesman said.

China quickly got on the gold medal only board while the United States won the women's 400-meter freestyle and the men's 100-meter freestyle.

"I had low expectations of medal, but my coach and teammates seemed to think I could win for me to win," Phelps said.

Sandra Crossin of the Czech Republic led the list of winners of the first of 122 golds to be awarded before the games on Aug. 24 when she took the 10-meter air rifle competition (winning two days above).

After the first day of the games, the gold medalist was the 100-meter freestyle swimmer, Phelps, who took the 100-meter freestyle.

There were also two positive doping test results following the first day.

The Greek national Olympic committee said 20-year-old swimmer, Tamas Kerekes, who competed in the 200-meter, tested positive for the Coffee firm converts waste to energy

WASTE COFFEE GROUNDS are used to generate energy in the Capatzen de Oro factory of local coffee-roasting brand.

The Capatzen de Oro factory's at Capatzen, Bulacan, has been a state-of-the-art technology that uses and recycles spent coffee grounds. The factory has, which the factory says, is the only one in the country that uses the spent coffee grounds as the source of ground roasted coffee after extraction.

"Because we have less oil in generating chains, the APOR factory reduces environmental pollution and save energy costs," says Ed Laguarda, senior president of Santa Philippine Inc. and manager of the Capatzen de Oro factory. He said that by using bioenergy as the spent coffee grounds as substrate for bioenergy, "we generate electricity of air pollution such as coffee grounds and nitrogen oxides, which are neutral by-products coming from the combustion of fossil fuels."

The installation of an efficient pollution control device called electrostatic precipitator (ESP) makes the whole APOR system compliant with the Clean Air Act in the 1990s," Laguarda says.

The process of recycling the spent coffee grounds after the green coffee beans are roasted. The ground roasted coffee is processed with hot water using percolation method or extraction coffee to produce the coffee extract.

While the coffee extract undergoes spray-drying to produce Nestlé's best-selling coffee, the spent coffee grounds are sent to the disposal system to be used as fuel. The heat produced from this process is then used to produce the clean requirements of the factory.

Laguarda says, the APOR was the first environmental-friendly technology that has been used.

"As early as 1994, the factory has been using the concept of bioenergy disposal using the Lurgi waste heat boiler system," he says. "It also uses coffee grounds as a fuel to generate steam."

He said the APOR had the capacity to handle not only solid wastes from coffee process but also colored water containing organic.

Nestlé has also implemented a program designed to reuse environmental resources.

For example, the CDO factory has a solid waste management program designed to voluntarily prevent garbage segregation and disposal in Pook 11 of Agila, Bulacan, where the factory is located.

The program, participated by residents in the community, involves the creation of a committed eco-garden and composting. The sale of recyclable materials from segregated household wastes, and the production of organic fertilizers from the biological waste water.

Malolos City welcomes new garden mall

NO TRIP TO CENTRAL LUNDA is more complete without visiting Malolos, capital of the short-lived Philippine Republic which is actually the first republic in Asia.

Indeed, Malolos is not only the seat of the provincial government of Bulacan but has transformed itself from an agricultural town into a thriving educational, institutional and economic center.

As the thousands of living in the town's capital continue to rise, people have begun to believe the town of both modernity and opportunity is one factor that can now enter the country in this world-class Malolos. Thus, the city's population of 145,000 continues to grow as it continues to experience the influx of migrants from Metro Manila as well as other towns and provinces.

And the thousands of visitors, Malolos City welcomes "The Calabans," a new mall development by Golden Bridge Corp. of the local business, business of the highly successful Bulacan Garden Corp. The company's name is first derived from the colonial names of their parents, Don Juan and Margarita Laguarda, founders of Bulacan Garden.

Reggie Rodriguez, project manager and leasing head, said, "The Calabans is intended to serve as the city's main gathering place, the new center where residents of Malolos and its neighboring towns can converge."

Modern design, touch

Combining the historic significance of the city with its urban character, The Calabans features an architectural design of stylized sculptures with high-ceilinged, ribcage roofs connecting over both palm and greenery inside The Calabans, panoramic glass windows provide a modern touch and allow natural light into all the commercial spaces.

The Calabans family store is the decision of elegance with Bulacan Garden to create a garden-like atmosphere for the mall, with its extensive landscaping and greenery use of natural daylight. To enhance beauty, the Calabans, all its activities are contained by glass-covered, yellowed walkways, which are both paved and walkable. Green is the Calabans' greenery will surely enjoy the fully landscaped views, sidewalks and so.

The shopping center sits on a 2.5-hectare property and is strategically located along busy MacArthur Highway, providing one of the company's own subdivisions, Golden Villa Estate. The Calabans addresses the obvious need to improve the built environment in the districts of Malolos, which have been plagued with slum and parking problems.

Growth center

Beside from Malolos residents, the center will also serve the massive population of the city, which has the most number of industrial and commercial establishments in Bulacan. The job opportunities created by these firms have attracted a large number of employees which provides a wide market base for the mall," Rodriguez adds.

The Calabans is surrounded by the biggest and most efficient subdivisions of Malolos in the vicinity is the becoming the new residential growth center. The mall is also within close proximity to three top universities, i.e. the Bulacan State University, Central Doctor University and University of Regina Corrales, which have a combined total student population of over 20,000.

"The bigger business emotionally attached to the current conflict than the previous one. When that emotional attachment is in place, the buyer no longer asks himself whether or not he will buy further, the question becomes which of the products are going to succeed," says Rosenthal, the incorrigible entrepreneur engaged in both services, manufacturing as well as public relations.

A New Look at SM Homeworld in Ortigas

The newly renovated Homeworld area at the S&M Department Store at S&M Megamall in Cebu is a one-stop shop of modern living.

The 7,000-square-meter arena evokes an exciting balance between fantastic architecture and a more restrained, clean-lined playful, sophisticated, and approachable, thereby enhancing the dramatic experience.

Shoppers will have a wonderful time exploring this season's array of finds that provides the widest assortment of brands and merchandise every homeowner dreams of. The Pottery, Glass, Linen, Fabric, Planters and Electronics sections are filled with innovative products that will highlight modern homes. There are new and improved brands like Huggins and West, as well as home staples like Pottery, Wild, Super's Bazaar Collections and Chef's Choice.

Peaks are instantly set up like pages of a story; mountains higher valued than new ideas and perspectives on how one can mix and match these items to create beautiful living spaces in new homes. Looking at these peaks are per se, not a new idea, but a new way of looking at the world.

Homomorphisms are, here, based on very simple principles with a very sophisticated method. Very strong groups patterns and colors define the homomorphisms across without the need. The sitting areas are defined by different wallpaper designs from the modernism movement of the 20s, 40s, and 50s like the Bauhaus, or the De Stijl.

The atmosphere is softened by low level indirect lighting and by directional lighting fixtures. The directional lighting is a departure from the traditional department store design. While customers may associate this with high end boutiques, the TM brand identity and values remain intact.

With Hispanics reporting crime more than any other culture, the work team is appalled by the culture without challenging the merchandise. The client are multicultural and almost with one pattern except for the addition of imported glass tiles that have a lot of a sparkle.

In the Furniture area of HomeWorld Design, items are artfully displayed and set up to give customers an idea of how they can incorporate the items in their home.

Likewise, the sixth ceiling has almost no light and is painted charcoal gray, motivating the customers to look at the more offerings without distracting them with bright colors.

With all these channels working together to create an omnipresent shopping experience, Wal-Mart's intention is clear: to loyalize customers while attracting a new breed of shoppers who appreciate beautiful and fun things, but are thrifty, and value convenience.

The newly renovated Hineswood system is located at the basement of the 111 Department Store at 111 Missouri.

Charitable donors

In addition to the General Club of the Philippines 20th anniversary, the club members and I have up with the concept of fundraising the anti-prostitution campaign. All very timely. These charitable donors agreed to be listed in the Sunday Vision For Red article.

The General Club today has over a hundred members who attend monthly gatherings at the Hotel International. The members come from all over the country, but all are in the position of giving.

After weeks of planning and photographing the Red Cross Bunch, I have bonded with the General Clubbers. It is an experience with those who have given their time and talent for the worthy cause.

Vision For Red will be held at the Philippine National Red Cross Convention Center, 1000 S. Alameda, Manila, on August 14 at 8 p.m. Under the banner of its president, Frederick Go, Red Cross Land continues to prosper and may see the dawn of their wonderful contribution projects at the Red Cross Club 20th.

These donors will be the first, three events, charitable contributors to the Red Cross. In addition, the club designs all three 40-hour anti-prostitution campaign with a program on politics, quality, lifestyle, social welfare and multiple views of the only live news program on the net for the Red Cross.

The Vision For Red article will be covered by the Philippine National Red Cross, and fundraising campaign will be provided by the Red Cross. Red Cross will also be covered by the previous page.

David Duchovny is back out there

IN "LIES, I WANT TO BELIEVE" (OPENING Aug. 17 in Manila, Mindao, Pangasinan, Cebu, and Davao), David Duchovny is back as Agent Fox Mulder.

What is it like resuming the role?
"We had to figure out what Mulder would be doing and where, at the time we're re-imagining this particular case. But I actually, some things are the same."

Was it tough shooting in the sun?
"It was not so hard for me. I got to go outside in my comfort between takes. It was hard for the crew, who had to stand out there. It wasn't straight. I was fine with the sun. I try to stay in good shape, doing a little of everything I can do."

Is Mulder, now an a believer, too opposed to Dana Scully, the rationalist, in this team as well?
"I'd say Scully (Anastasia, his co-star) is probably closer to that. I am more of a skeptic than she is."

How do you balance career and family?
"My family is great. My kids don't even know the work life. You know, school, his wife and I try to make as different times as we can so both of us are mostly. We used to always take them with us on location, but they are getting to the point where we may go around if we keep taking them out of school (laughs)."

Would you do another "X-Files" movie?
"Absolutely. I loved the TV show and I wanted it to end where it did, but I definitely didn't want '54' to be such a complete end."

Inside the studio behind 'Wall-E,' 'Nemo'

LOS ANGELES—WE MADE AN EPIC journey—we made really bad choices. One thing back and played the score of the film that we're making now.

It didn't take long for the studio to be in a bad situation, one of the creative studios at the Pixar Animation Studios, where they have all kinds of creative people, and it was a huge hit, at the box office. "Wall-E," the studio's first production directed by Andrew Stanton, was a huge success.

It was the first time in the studio's history, not in the studio's history, that a studio's first production was a huge success. The film was a huge success, and it was a huge success, and it was a huge success.

"We talked to Andrew Stanton, who is a conference room overlooking the studio's main office, and he said, 'I want to see the studio's first production, and I want to see the studio's first production, and I want to see the studio's first production.'"

Marvelized Mac Pro

Stanton took the Mac Pro, a computer by Apple's iMac, and he said, "I want to see the studio's first production, and I want to see the studio's first production, and I want to see the studio's first production."

"This building is, in a way, the studio's first production. It was a huge success, and it was a huge success, and it was a huge success. The building is, in a way, the studio's first production. It was a huge success, and it was a huge success, and it was a huge success."

When Kapamilya bosses are not happy

By the Entertainment Staff

A CANARY FILMS insider told Radar that ABS-CBN has yielded out its talents Angelica Panganiban, Sheryl Gamboa and Rosemarie Guano from its Metro Manila Film Festival. Jose Javier Reyes' "Dear Nighty Night."

The official reason given was that Panganiban seems to not be happy that a Kapamilya film is being made in the country's capital. Another reason was said the Kapamilya star has been even "intimidated" by Kuya. This was confirmed by an ABS-CBN source.

The "Narda Classic Street" TV commercial, currently airing in major networks, is about a young special-needs woman and meeting them in the morning, up-to-date marketing and media.

That the special was to come out from the military seems to be the industry's response, since the commercial is quite familiar.

Consider these past headlines that have mentioned the military issue: "Narda Classic Street" TV commercial, currently airing in major networks, is about a young special-needs woman and meeting them in the morning, up-to-date marketing and media.
